Dear Randy:

At long-last I am sending you a "galley print" of Tribes and States in Conflict". I realize you have a great deal to read, but perhaps you may have a chance to look this booklet over. I'm looking for a publisher for this thing to produce it in a small book form. Since I have only fifteen "galleys" to distribute perhaps you could give me a hand finding a publisher in SF.

I am also enclosing a copy of my piece entitled "The World Bank's New Indigenous Policy ...". I would be deeply appreciative if your Friends of the Earth publication would consider printing this article. In fact, as you may notice, there are actually two articles in one contained in this piece. The "Background on the World Bank" section of the article could be run as a companion piece. Let me know if you know of any interest regarding the publication of either of the enclosed papers.

I am sending a copy of the World Bank piece to Tim Coulter for its possible inclusion and consideration by participants in the upcoming multi-nationals conference. I intend to share the Bank piece with Francis Lappe at the Institute on Food Policy as well.

I certainly appreciate your continuing interest in work connected with indigenous rights. And, thank you in advance for your interest and help on the enclosed pieces.

Regards,

RUDOLPH C. RYSER
